Mindfulness to Fine Tune Your Leadership Inner Game

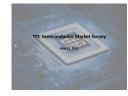

Several of you have recently returned from EDS with its crazy pace and hectic schedule, only to face the intense complexities waiting for you back at the office. The perfect antidote may be some quiet reflective time.

Leadership effectiveness is a primary factor in business performance. Leaders in the 90th percentile on 360 degree competency assessments produce twice the results of those in the 10th to 89th percentile, according to a heavily researched book The Extraordinary Leader, by Zenger and Folkman (2009). And yet leadership challenges continue to grow. According to an IBM survey of 1500 CEOs, the top two challenges for business are 1) escalating complexity 2) building creative capacity to deal with it.

Read Bill's column to learn more about the practice of mindfulness to improve productivity and creativity.

Published quarterly, the Electronic Component Sales Trends (ECST) survey asks individuals from both member and nonmember companies for their personal view on activity in certain end-markets and sales trends for specific electronic component groups.

This survey has two goals: confirm predictions about the current quarter and determine sentiments about the next. The results of this survey are published each quarter. Participants will receive the results of this survey by mid-June. Members can see all previous reports by visiting www.ecianow.org. Log in at the upper-right corner and visit "Industry Stats and Analytics" under the "Knowledge Center" tab to view the reports.
